

Christmas Came Early

AS3

A project years in the making was finally completed as I erected my Cushcraft tri-bander. It was a great feeling that was felt by the author, some tweaking is required yet. I was on the air this past week with good signal reports coming back. A new sunspot cycle is on the horizon and hoping to get a bushel load of QSO's on 20m, 15m and 10m.

Definitely an early gift for the start of the Holidays, after living in the East Bay where it was not possible to use such a piece of equipment. I feel a lot of excitement.
